SOLD COSTLY CARS FOR A SONG, BUT FAILED TO DELIVER

Sam King, of 343 Willits street, was arrested last Sunday by officers from San Francisco, charged with having engaged in a "Ponzi stunt," in that he had promised to sell, and did sell, $1,500 automobiles for $750.

The arresting officers claim that King's scheme was so neatly worked out that, although they had evidence that King had defrauded customers of approximately $25,000, the only charges they specifically pinned on him are non-delivery of just three cars, resulting in having him booked for grand theft.

Officers described his method as the old "snowball" device of taking money in one window and paying it out another. He would tell his prospects, according to the charge, that he had a method of getting, very cheaply, automobiles on which some payments had been made and the contracts then defaulted. He would offer a car easily worth $1,500, at a conservative estimate, for $750 cash. The prospect usually advanced the money.

Then King would explain, it was charged, that there were certain delays about getting the papers fixed up for release of the defaulted car, and meanwhile didn't they want to let some of their friends in on a good thing like this? As they usually did, that meant more cash.

Eventually came the contract time for delivery to the first customer. By that time several more prospects had paid their money, and King, it is charged, was able to go out and make a bona fide purchase of a car from a legitimate company.

Most of King's prospects were Japanese, and their difficulty with the American language and law, it is charged, aided him. He finally struck a Japanese importer, however, whose business sense told him something must be wrong with a "something for nothing" scheme like that.

The importer told his suspicions to Lieutenant Bernard McDonald of the San Francisco police department. A little quiet investigation was started, and the workings of King's scheme revealed.

His main fraud, according to the officers, concerns cars for which he already had accepted payment and promised delivery.

The officers said that they cannot touch him for this, however, because the contracts are not yet due, and theoretically he has a chance to make good on them. The specific charges concern three cars for which he accepted payment and then did not deliver on the contract date.

SCHOOL PRINCIPAL TALKS TO LIONS

Professor James Ferguson, Jefferson Union high school principal, a guest of the Daly City Lions Club at last Monday's luncheon meeting, delivered an address which was thoroughly enjoyed by the members.

Professor Ferguson warmly commended the activities of the service club and its worth to the community, declaring that a properly conducted civic service club was one of the greatest assets of any community, and that the membership should be encouraged in their work by all who believed in progress and sound building.

Business growth of a city was increased, the schools and homes benefitted greatly, he declared, as a result of the activities of a properly conducted civic service club.

Charles P. Gibbons, of Charles P. Gibbons & Son, insurance, commented upon the progress being made in building and other improvements in Daly City, and prophesied that even greater progress is in store for this section, which already has every advantage for continued growth.

THIRTY-TWO FRESHMEN BEGIN WORK AT SCHOOL

Last Tuesday the roll at Jefferson Union high school was increased by thirty-two, when that number of new scholars from Woodrow Wilson and Hocker schools began their work in the high school.

BERTHA KARMANN BRIDE OF RALPH MacARTHUR AT PRETTY CHURCH WEDDING

One of the prettiest weddings of the current season was that of last Saturday evening, when Miss Bertha T. Karmann, of Burlingame, became the bride of Ralph C. MacArthur, manager of the Bank of Italy at Daly City, at the Burlingame Methodist church, at 8:30 o'clock, with Dr. C. B. Sylvester officiating at the ceremony.

The church was beautifully decorated for the event with palms arranged in arch effects on the side of the chapel and in front of the altar. Ferns and potted pink begonias were extensively used in the decorative scheme of pink and green. The chapel was filled to its capacity with the relatives and friends of the bride and groom.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. U. Karmann, of Floribunda avenue, Burlingame, has lived in that community since 1915 and has a large circle of friends. She is a member of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Burlingame and was at one time an officer of the club.

At the ceremony the bride was charmingly dressed in white satin made in simple lines and she wore a veil fastened to the coiffure with orange blossoms. The shower bouquet was lillies of the valley and gardenias.

Mrs. George Gilson, sister of the bride, was the only attendant. She wore yellow crepe de chine and carried a shower bouquet of roses and pansies.

George Karmann, brother of the bride, was best man.

A pleasing note of the ceremony was added by the vocal selections, "O Promise Me," by Charles F. Bulotti, San Francisco tenor. He was accompanied by Mrs. Charles F. Bulotti. Miss Bernice Tuttle sang "I Love You Truly," accompanied by Miss Eula McCurdy, of San Mateo.

At the conclusion of the ceremony a reception was held at the Benjamin Franklin hotel, followed by a banquet in the private banquet hall on the mezzanine floor, where about sixty relatives and close friends were guests.

OFFICERS ARE INSTALLED BY THE ROYAL NEIGHBORS

The last meeting of the local Camp, Royal Neighbors of America, was of special interest, combining the initiation of several new members with the installation of the officers elected to serve during the year 1928.

The beautiful ritualistic ceremony was impressive with Mrs. May Goodfriend as installing officer, Mrs. Gertrude Gehringer, ceremonial marshal, and Mrs. Agnes Gowland, musician.

The officers installed were: Mrs. Mary White, Oracle; Mrs. Anna Romer, Vice-Oracle; Mrs. Daisy Davey, Chancellor; Mrs. Clarissa Scott, Recorder; Mrs. Johanna Hedwall, Receiver; Mrs. Lucy Nelson, Inner Sentinel; Mrs. Marie Roecker, Outer Sentinel; Mrs. Anna Smith, Marshal; Mrs. Vera Woolridge, Musician; Mrs. Gertrude Gehringer and Mrs. Anna Welch, Managers.

Gifts of flowers were presented to the new officers and many words of praise to the retiring officers, who have kept alive the spirit of neighborliness in this organization.

Guests were present from Mission and San Francisco Camps and Toledo Camp, Washington. Refreshments were served and a happy social hour enjoyed at the close of the meeting.

ISSUES WARNING TO MOTORISTS

A warning is sent out by Police Chief John Doyle to all "speeders"—violators of Section 113, State Motor Vehicle Act.

The fifteen and twenty mile zone through Daly City will be strictly enforced, as the "speeding" must be stopped.

Numerous accidents have occurred in San Mateo county since January 1, due to reckless driving and speeding, which have caused injuries and loss of lives of innocent people.

Before operating a car, acquaint yourself with the laws governing, for your own protection and public safety.

Our local police have adopted the following slogan: "Welcome! Drive slow and see our city. Drive fast and see our police."

School Paper Has New Staff

With the resumption of the publication of the Totem Pole, the weekly paper published by the student body of Jefferson Union high school, a new staff takes over the work for this semster. The staff is composed of the following students: Mildred Swan, editor; Adell Price, assistant; Anne Tromborg and Elsie Nelso, advertising managers; Elizabeth Saame, circulation manager; Henry Boynton, Earl Friend, Genevive Johnson, Peter Markovich, Blanche Romiguiere and Marie Walker, reporters.

NEW TOLL BRIDGE WILL BE LONGEST SPAN IN THE WORLD

With the completion by the San Francisco Bay Toll Bridge Company of their gigantic span across the bay, San Mateo will be the western terminus of the longest bridge in the world.

This statement was made by Captain F. A. Savage, one of the construction enginners associated with the San Francisco Bay Toll Bridge Company, in an address at a luncheon meeting of the San Mateo Chamber of Commerce.

"The bridge is completely financed," said Mr. Savage, "and the contractor has in his hands funds to go ahead with the actual construction. The bridge will be built at the rate of a mile a month, and if it is not completed within eighteen months the Raymond Concrete Pile Company will have a huge penalty to meet. This assures quick construction.

"San Mateo must utilize the immense traffic that will pass over the bridge between the San Joaquin valley and San Francisco. We will have a development here that no other project could make greater."

OFFICERS ARE INSTALLED BY ORDER OF JOB'S DAUGHTERS

The fourth installation of officers of Bethel No. 26, Order of Job's Daughters, took place last Saturday evening at George Washington Temple. The following were installed:

SPECIAL SERVICES SUNDAY AT METHODIST CHURCH

The Daly City Methodist church will have a special service Sunday morning at 10:45. Sunday school will begin promptly at 10 o'clock and will be followed at 10:45 by a special service for the children as well as for the adults. Several children will be baptized at the church hour.

Jesus said, "Suffer the little children to come unto Me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of God." This is the opportune time, Mother and Father, to have your children baptized. Don't forget the hour.

Another feature at the morning service will be a special song by Lola Hooton and Alma Harper, accompanied by Irene Twesten.

Sunday evening the pastor will preach on the subject of "Compassion." Mrs. Clarice Olson will sing a special solo. You will enjoy the evening service. Make it a point to be present morning and evening.

The Friendly Indians will meet at the church Tuesday afternoon at 3:30, at which time they will make plans for a hike on Saturday. Only those that attend the meeting on Tuesday will be able to come on the hike. Be sure and be present.

ELLIOTT L. FISHER, Pastor.

MAY HAVE A PICKWICK STATION IN DALY CITY

If satisfactory arrangements can be settled upon, the Pickwick stages proceeding from San Francisco to points south will establish a branch office and ticket agency at the Edwards Drug Store, on the top of the hill. At present there is not sufficient space to allow the stages to pull in at this point, on account of the street car stopping directly in front of the proposed station. If the matter can be amicably adjusted whereby the San Jose avenue cars do not come so far up the hill, this stopping station will be established immediately by the Pickwick stages. It is hoped that something may be done to overcome this difficulty, as it would mean a great deal to Daly City.

ROADS OF COUNTY WILL BE IMPROVED DURING YEAR 1928

As indicated by the action of the State Highway Commission at its recent meeting at Sacramento, roads in San Mateo county are to be materially benefited by that body during the year 1928.

One of the outstanding acts of the highway commission was the voting of $970,500 for the Bay Shore highway. On top of this amount is the assurance that more is to be spent when necessary. This amount is to be used on this road between now and June of 1929.

The road funds were divided in keeping with the Breed gasoline tax bill, on a basis of $8,082,275 in the northern counties and $7,017,225 in the southern group.

The Bay Shore highway will receive $970,500, to be spent on the following stretches in this county: San Francisco to South San Francisco, $625,500; South San Francisco to Broadway station, $150,000; Broadway station to San Mateo, $180,000; Visitacion Valley to South San Francisco, $15,000.

The commission voted $300,000 for grading and sufacing 7.5 miles of the Skyline boulevard between La Honda and Saratoga gap.

It is announced that if the attorney general rules that an additional $1,000,000 in federal aid funds may be allocated, it intends to devote $350,000 of that amount to further work on the Skyline boulevard.

NATIVE DAUGHTERS INSTALL OFFICERS

The installation of the officers of El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West, which took place in Masonic Hall, Daly City, on Wednesday evening, was well attended and proved to be a most enjoyable occasion.

District Deputy Grand President Rena Mathais, assisted by Josephine Johnson, Rose Sweeney, Emma Schwarz, Madeleine Fellows, Bernice McGoirk and other members, installed the following members for the ensuing term: Past President, Sylvia Fischer; President, Alice Mathais; First Vice-President, Lorraine Wall; Second Vice-President, Dolores Barron; Third Vice-President, proxy for Rose Mowry; Marshal, Florence McKendrick; Organist, Ida Doyle; Treasurer, Rena Mathais; Recording Secretary, Hattie Kelley; Financial Secretary, Collista Dalton; Inside Sentinel, Freida Schade; Outside Sentinel, Sarah Battaini; Trustees, Mary May, Fredericka Volkman and Annie Biggio.

Mrs. Biggio was presented with a Past President's emblematic pin.

Mrs. Johnson, who has been the faithful and untiring recording secretary of the Parlor for many years, and resigned her position for a much needed rest from its duties, was presented with six handsome silver spoons in the Carmel pattern as a small remembrance of her appreciated services.

Past President Alice Mathais received several lovely gifts. Past President Sylvia Fischer was presented with several pieces of handsome silver. Vice-President Lorraine Wall received a gorgeous bouquet of American beauty roses.

Following the ceremonies, songs were rendered by Rod Ross of the San Francisco Grand Opera Company and Miss Gussie Kling. Then dancing to excellent music and refreshments of coffee and cake were enjoyed by all.

First Vice-President Lorraine Wall, who was assisted by Mary May, Fredericka Volman and others, who worked on the various committees, deserve much commendation for their efforts to make the affair a success.

ASSOCIATED FIREMEN MEET IN SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO

There was a gratifying attendance of members of the Associated Firemen of San Mateo county at their regular monthly meeting, held last Tuesday evening in South San Francisco, at the City Hall.

The meeting, at which considerable business of interest to the firemen was transacted, was presided over by President Roddenberger, with Secretory N. M. Nassits and the other officers at their posts.

Those from Daly City in attendance at the meeting were Chief J. J. Kennedy, A. Vireno, A. Chesney, H. W. A. Rickman, J. Twesten, E. Cuneo, V. Fenstermaker, H. P. Rolf, Chas. Reinhardt, A. Green, R. Anderson, C. J. Brady, V. Savelly, G. W. Felsh and A. Lang. There was a large attendance from the various fire departments of the cities and towns in San Mateo county.

The next meeting of the Associated Firemen will be held in Redwood City on Tusday, February 21.

VOTERS MUST REGISTER THIS YEAR REGARDLESS OF PREVIOUS REGISTRATION

County Clerk Elizabeth M. Kneese, who predicts that 30,000 voters will be registered in San Mateo county this year, wishes all the voters of the county to know that every voter in the state of California, regardless of previous registration, must register in 1928, if he or she expects to cast a ballot, and that the sooner each voter files his record, the better for all concerned.

In addition it is pointed out that there will be elections of importance early this year, and all who are to vote at these elections must be registered at least thirty days in advance.

The first will be the county school elections, March 30, for which registration closes February 29. Next are municipal elections throughout the county, held on April 9. All voters must be registered by March 10 to vote at the April city elections.

The presidential primaries, of extreme importance, occur this year on May 1. To vote in the presidential primaries it will be necessary to register before March 31.

The state and county primaries occur August 28, registration closing July 28, and the November presidential and national election will be held November 6. Those not registered prior to October 6 will not be eligible to vote for president of the United States and for state and federal officers in November.

Registration of voters is reported to be proceeding rapidly, but the lists this year will be larger than ever before, so that voters should speed up the work as much as possible, it is stated.

The figures on registration in the last previous year, 1926, show that a total of 24,009 were registered in San Mateo county. In 1924 the total was 20,494. A logical increase for the past two years will bring the 1928 total to approximately 30,000, it is estimated.

The following registration clerks have been appointed who will look after the registering of voters in Daly City:

Mrs. Charles McKee, 79 Irvington street.

Mrs. Margaret Fahey, 613 Bellevue avenue.

Mrs. G. R. Augustien, 510 Evergreen avenue.

Mrs. J. Hawkins, 139 Knowles avenue.

Chas. Shoup, 116 Miriam street.

Those desiring to register at the City Hall can do so with City Clerk B. C. Ross or Judge Ellis C. Johnson.

And remember that you must register this year if you wish to vote, no matter how often you have registered in the past. And today is a good time to attend to this matter.

SPLENDID ATTENDANCE AT GRACE PRESBYTERIAN

The church is not in competition with any other institution, but stands alone in its peculiar way for the peace and happiness of all in the community and can only be successful by the united efforts of all who love the home and its sacred interests.

There was a splendid attendance last Sabbath evening at Grace Presbyterian church, both at the C. E. and also preaching service, and a marked increase of interest was noted.

The solo, "Crossing the Bar," by Tennison, sung Sabbath evening by Mr. Gifford Teel, was much appreciated and enjoyed and all were glad to have Mr. Teel back in the work, and we are hoping that he may be with us regularly.

The theme for this Sabbath evening will be, "Unknown and Misunderstood." What causes more heartache and trouble today than the misunderstanding of what people and the church are trying to do? Come out.

Miss Kathleen Welsh will have charge of the C. E. this Sabbath evening and a good program is assured.

The Ladies' Guild met in the regular sewing circle on Wednesday afternoon. The attendance was fine and the spirit was most happy and congenial.

CHAS. H. GATCHELL, Minister.

EIGHTEEN ON HONOR ROLL

The college recommendable honor roll at Jefferson Union high school showed that eighteen scholars had made the grade for the past ten weeks, when the reports came in. It is confidently expected that the next report will show a larger number on this roll.

TRAFFIC OFFICER IS CALLED ON CARPET BY SUPERVISORS

Traffic Chief James Logan was called before the board of supervisors at the meeting of the board at Redwood City last Monday, and told that changes would be made in the San Mateo county traffic squad unless improvement is noted in traffic conditions throughout the county, where two fatal accidents in which automobile busses have been involved, had occurred within the past fifteen days, resulting in the death of four persons and the injury of more than a dozen.

Numerous complaints of the alleged laxity of traffic law enforcement have reached the board, Supervisor Thomas L. Hickey told the traffic bureau head. Automobile stages are running on the center of the state highway and "hogging" the road during holiday congestion, it was pointed out.

The calling of Traffic Chief Logan before the board is said to have followed a conference in the office of District Attorney Swart, who was quoted as stating that with eight men on the county squad there should be better enforcement of the law.

In answering Supervisor Hickey, the traffic chief declared that ninety arrests have been made by the squad during the past month, nad that fines of from $2.50 to $5 have been assessed by justice courts.

He also stated that a state inspector of traffic had viewed the situation here, and that it has been decided to do away with the center lanes for fast traffic.

The board announced that Chief Logan will hereafter be permitted to spend practically all of his time on the road, a new post having been created in the county traffic bureau, in charge of Mrs. Hilda McGovern, widow of the late Sheriff T. C. McGovern. Mrs. McGovern will attend the duties of the office and be in charge during the absence of the traffic chief. She will receive $125 per month and be on duty from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

It was also decided to hold a conference on January 25, at which constables and justices of the peace will be asked to co-operate in working out a solution of the growing traffic menace. Traffic officers and supervisors will also attend.

The meeting will also confer on the advisability of regular inspection of roadside resorts throughout the county, under a system adopted in San Benito county. This came about with a talk to the board by District Attorney Swart, who said that the granting of permits to sell soft drinks is ineffective unless there is proper inspection to determine whether or not the law is being observed. He declared himself against the present "gumshoe" method of regulating road houses, and said that he had been advised of the San Benito county procedure under which regular inspection is made by the sheriff.

Mrs. Grace L. Cooper, county treasurer, seeking additional help for her office, was told by the board that nothing can be done for the present, as there is no legal way in which the present force of two persons in the treasurer's office can be increased at present. Numerous paving and other improvement projects throughout the county have thrown an additional burden on the county treasurer, who has only one assistant.

TENRDERED SURPRISE PARTY ON EIGHTEENTH BIRTHDAY

Raynold Viotti, of 51 Irvington street, was given a surprise party at the home of Misses Florence and Clara Abagnale, of 165 Rolph street, last Saturday night, in honor of his eighteenth birthday. The evening was spent in dancing and at midnight a tempting supper was served.

Those present to wish him a happy birthday were: Misses Bernice Cadigan, Bertha Achstetter, Margaret Rubiolo, Louise Garzot, Mable Garcia, Florence Garcia, Violet Trearney, Florence Abagnale, Clara Abagnale, Babe Cadigan, Norma Rubiolo, Helen Smith; Messrs. Elmo Viotti, Darrell De Martini, Alfred Figone, Edward Figone, Frank Herold; Mr. and Mrs. M. Abagnale, Mr. and Mrs. J. Viotti, Mr. and Mrs. J. Rubiolo and Mrs. Lucille De Martini.

FEDERAL AID FOR SKYLINE BOULEVARD

Congressman Welch, of San Francisco, last Tuesday sent telegrams from Washington to San Francisco friends, stating that he could secure an appropriation of $350,000 from the government for the Skyline boulevard. The state of California appropriated a sum of $300,000, contingent on the appropriation of $350,000 from the federal government.

FEWER MARRIAGES DUE TO NEW LAW

Both births and deaths increased in California during 1927, while marriages, under the new three-day wedding notice law, showed a decrease, according to the official estimate of the state department of public health announced by L. E. Ross, chief of the bureau of vital statistics.

Marriages dropped off somewhat after the so-called "gin marriage" statute became effective at the end of July. The estimate for 1927 is 53,498, or 12.6 per 1,000 population. This is contrasted with 56,664 weddings during the previous year, when the rate was 13.7.

Los Angeles county led the state in marriages during the last twelve months, with 16,875, while Alpine county, boatsing but one wedding, came last.

With San Francisco second in the state at large and Alameda county third, the complete marriage totals for the nine bay counties were as follows: San Francisco, 6,570; Alameda, 4,031; Contra Costa, 590; Marin, 393; Napa, 274; San Mateo, 1,039; Solana, 233; Sonoma, 559, and Santa Clara, 1,739.

Old Doctor Stork delivered 84,400 babies in California during the last twelve months, as compared with 82,372 in 1926, Ross estimated, although the birth rate remained at 19.9 per 1,000 population.

Deaths were placed at 62,200 for the year, or 14.7 per 1,000 population. In 1926 there were 58,742 deaths and the rate was 14.2.

There were 29.6 suicides per 100,000 population during 1927, according to the state estimate. The statement gave 1,240 suicides for the year just ended and 1,118 for 1926.

Available records on deaths from external causes, including homicides, gives a total of 4,100 for 1927 and 4,803 for 1926. The estimated rate was 96.8 per 100,000 population for the last year, a marked decrease under the rate of 116.3 for the previous calendar year.

Ross estimated auto deaths for 1927 as 1,725, on the basis of nearly completed returns from the fifty-eight counties. The motor vehicle death toll for 1926 was 1,623.

WORKERS GAINING CONTROL OF BANK

The most pronounced departure in American finance, the employes' compensation plan of the Bank of Italy, whereby the workers, 4,500 in number, are gradually obtaining administrative control of that institution, has developed to the point where there is now $10,300,320 in this control fund, it is stated in a special report recently issued. The semi-annual allocation made by the bank itself to the fund is $1,246,189, the plan calling for the distribution of 40 per cent of the bank's net income to the employes. This distribution is made in the way of stock.

The amount of stock held is now 39,617 shares, this showing being as of December 31, 1927. Another allocation will be made at the end of the first half of the fiscal year.

As the plan has been in operation only since June 29, 1925, the accumulation of more than $10,000,000 by the employes since that time is noteworthy. It is credited with being the best answer yet devised to the contention that the worker should be compensated in proportion to his contribueion to the success of his establishment. Each employe of the bank is permitted to make a certain allocation of his salary to the fund, this contribution ranging from 10 per cent to 30 per cent of his salary. The scheme is proportioned, however, so that this contribution shall be at no time burdensome or embarrassing. As a matter of fact, there is no compulsion attached to the employe's contribution to the fund. He may not contribute anything at all. However, he will receive a partion of the 40 per cent added by the bank fund.

The plan not only guarantees a sufficient competence to the employe after he has left the institution, but has a tremendous effect on bank morale, teamwork and enthusiasm.

CONVICTS TO BUILD 37-MILE HIGHWAY

A new state prison camp accommodating 120 convicts will be established on the Carmel-San Simeon highway during March or early April, it has been announced by Bert B. Meek, state director of public works. Construction by convict labor is to be undertaken on a 37-mile stretch of highway, and it is planned to have two prison camps in operation on the route during the summer months. The prisoners will be transferred to the Carmel-San Simeon road from San Quentin penitentiary, where the prison board has indicated a desire to relieve congested conditions, Meek said.

Fewer Accidents in San Mateo County

There is more traffic and fewer accidents on El Camino Real in San Mateo county than there is is any section of the state, according to Chief Inspector La Place of the California motor vehicle department, following a survey last Saturday. Following a tour with Captain James B. Logan, La Place stated that conditions in this county were extremely good. He recommended, however, that lanes be abolished and that only a center line be placed on the highway to divide traffic going in opposite directions.

PLEDGE YOURSELF TO SAFE DRIVING IN 1928

The public safety department of the California State Automobile Association is broadcasting this message to the driving public and urging that every indvidual adopt a safety pledge for the new year.

"If present efforts to reduce the toll of street and highway accidents are to bring results, motorists must assume individual responsibility for safety and learn and practice common sense in driving," says Percy E. Towne, chairman of the Automobile Association public safety committee. Towne offers the following safety suggestions:

"Keep your car, its equipment and accessories, in good mechanical condition, and in accordance with the legal requirements of the state motor vehicle act.

"Learn the laws of the state and the regulations of your city regarding car operation and practice them consistently.

"Be courteous while on the highways and give every other motorist an equal opportunity to enjoy the pleasures to which he is entitled.

"Practice caution at all times, whether driving or walking, and urge your family and friends to do the same.

"Remember that children deserve your greatest consideration and it is the duty of adult drivers to protect these youngsters in every way possible."

Educators, safety engineers, traffic experts and law enforcement officials are combining their efforts to imbue in the public mind a safety consciousness, but their efforts will be of little avail unless every individual is willing to co-operate, Towne pointed out.

BIRTH CONTROL CASE REVERSED BY COURT

Carl Rave, birth control exponent, is again beyond control of the courts, Superior Judge Harold Louderback has reversed a verdict of the justice court which had found Rave guilty last November of selling "Family Limitations," a pamphlet written by Margaret Sanger, birth control advocate. The court held that the law also had its limitations, and that sale of a single copy of the book did not constitute "dissemination and circulation of birth control literature," as prohibited in the city ordinance which was adopted a half century ago. "Had the police obtained evidence of the sale of more than one copy," explained the judge, "the verdict of the lower court would have been upheld."

The funeral will take place tomorrow, Saturday, January 21, at 2 p. m., from the mortuary chapel of W. C. Lasswell & Co., 6154 Mission street. Interment will be at Mt. Olivet.

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Mrs. R. Castellini, of 99 Crocker avenue, and her daughter, Mrs. A. Gilli, gave a party on Saturday evening, January 7, in honor of Mr. Castellini's birthday. Dancing and muiscal selections on the violin, guitar, banjo and piano furnished the entertainment for the evening. At midnight a supper was served and the large birthday cake occupied the center of the table. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. Carboni, Mr. and Mrs. E. Treebay, Mr. and Mrs. L. Imarisio, Mr. and Mrs. O. Gilli, Mr. and Mrs. P. Fontana, Mr. and Mrs. Petra, Mr. and Mrs. J. Viotti, Misses Dorothy Treebay, Edith Gilli, Clara Gilli, Annie Lucey and Gloria Gilli; Messrs. ONE KILLED, FOUR INJURED WHEN AUTOMOBILE HITS BUS

T. Urban Hannigan, of San Francisco, was killed and four others were injured, when an automobile driven by Eddie O. Miller, of San Francisco, collided with a bus of the Peninusla Rapid Transit Company early Sunday morning at Redwood City. Miller is believed to have become confused by lights on a traffic signal at the intersection of Broadway and the State highway. Witnesses declared that the smaller machine tore into the side of the bus, which was said to have been well over on the proper side of the highway.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

The Tehama county Board of Supervisors last week agreed to provide $25,000, to be matched by $75,000 in Federal funds, in constructing a highway which will open up the Lassen Volcanic National Park, it was announced by Bert B. Meeks, State director of public works.

California's deaths from automobile crashes are mounting. This is shown in figures compiled by the department of vital statistics of the State board of health. Complete reports for the first nine months of 1927 shows the motor car had snuffed out 1,224 lives before October 1. This exceeds by seventy-eight the nine-month total for 1926, which set a record for fatalities, and is greater than the deaths for the entire year of 1922.

The First National Research Society of America was formed last week at Los Angeles with the announcement that it will "conduct an international inquiry into the wholesale tobacco poisoning of infants born to and nursed at the breasts of cigarette smoking mothers." This alleged "poisoning," the society declared in submitting incorporation papers from Los Angeles to the Secretary of State, "is believed to be increasing in prevalence with the universal addiction of women to cigarettes."

S. H. Kress and Company, national merchandising corporation, acting through Attorney Sylvester J. McAtee of San Francisco, last week purchased the Hornlein Building at Eighth and K streets, Sacramento from Mrs. Max Hornlein of Sacramento for $300,000. The announcement of the transaction indicated the Kress Company contemplates erection of a large store on the site upon expiration of present leases.

Award of a contract to the Shell Oil company of California for approximately 300,000 barrels of fuel oil needed at California's several hospitals, prisons and corrective schools during the calendar year, was announced recently by State Purchasing Agent McMillin. The oil will be distributed to the institutions for 98 cents a barrel at the shipping points, a price 6 cents below the prevailing market. The State also is assured that it will benefit from any decrease.

The city council of Martinez, county seat of Contra Costo county, is willing that Martinez be classed in the San Francisco metropolitan area, but they wish it understood that their city is resigning none of its rights as an individual corporation, its members announced at Martinez last week. Permission in include Martinez in the metropolitan area was sought recently during compilation of population figures. Martinez has a population of about 8,000.

A reduction of $14,000,000 in California's annual forest fire losses during the past thirty-seven years, due directly to the development of an adequate patrol system, is claimed by Fred G. Stevenot, State director of natural resources, and State Forester M. B. Pratt in a report to Governor C. C. Young. The two State officials delve into dusty tomes to unearth the first report of a State forestry board back in 1890, when the State's patrol system consisted of a few rangers employed to "post fire notices." In that year, the report shows, California's fire losses are estimated at $15,000,000.

Authorizations of $252,323,193 in public utility securities during 1927 by the California Railroad Commission in the form of stocks, bonds, notes and other evidences of indebtedness, exceeds the total of any other year by nearly $100,000,000, Leon O. Whitsell, president of the commission, reports. That the commission is exercising a real and vital supervision over all public utility security issues for which its sanction is sought, is proved, Whitsell points out, by the fact that since the commission's organization it has denied applications to issue $109,580,580, and dismissed applications to issue $116,557,541 in addition.

The first automobile tire produced from rubber grown in the United States is on display at Salinas this week in the office of the Salinas Chamber of Commerce. All the rubber used in the tire was extracted from Guayule shrubs grown in California by the American Rubber Products, Inc., which maintains its experimental laboratories and nearly 2,000 acres of land near Salinas. More than 800 acres of the shrubs have been planted, and enough seedings to plant 2,200 more acres are available. Present plans of the company call for planting of thousands of additional acres in various parts of the State. Officials say that the rubber can be produced cheaper in California than on the huge plantations of the company in Sumatra.

The three major industrial resources of Grass Valley—mining, farm stock and tourist-travel—have seldom been more promising at the beginning of a year than at the portal of 1928. This condition is reflected in greater building activity within the City of Grass Valley than has existed for many years. Gold mining, the historical industry at Grass Valley, appears to be in a healthy condition with some prospect of the coming of new operators with new capital to carry out very extensive consolidations and developments

Opening of a new diagnostic center at Palo Alto, Calif., was announced last week by the Veterans' Bureau at Washington. Like the ones at Cincinnati and Mt. Alto, Washington, the Palo Alto hospital will be manned by highly specialized medical officers.

Two records were established by the monoplane Spirit of California in its recent endurance flight, at San Francisco, even though it failed in its attempt for a new sustained flight record, according to assertions made by Frank Flynn, superintendent of Mills Airport at San Francisco. Flynn reported to the Board of Supervisors that the plane has established a new mark for sustained flight among ships of its type and that it has carried aloft the heaviest useful load ever lifted by heavier than-tir craft.

Both cities and states are falling into line in the movement for adoption of uniform traffic laws and regulations, reports the California State Automobile Association which is sponsoring the uniform code for California cities in the northern and central part of the state. The Automobile Club of Southern California is leading this movement in the south and a total of fifty-three cities in the state now have the standardized code of regulations in effect.

California's most prominent realtor, Governor C. C. Young, will be the guest of honor of the San Francisco Real Estate Board, January 24, at the first luncheon meeting of the local organization in the new year. The meeting will be held in the concert room of the Palace Hotel. Alexander R. Heron, chairman of the State Board of Control, will also appear on the program along with Governor Young as one of the speakers of the day. Charles E. Street Jr. is chairman of arrangements.

It's all right for the maids and matrons of California to strive for that "svelte-like lissomeness," but they're foolish if they fall for the "fads and fallacies of reducing." That's the gist of a claim made last week by M. E. Jaffa, chief of the State bureau of foods and drugs, in an attack on "obesity cures" often tried out with serious results, he said, by "women who imagine they weight too much." Seven among the "most prominent fads and fallacies in nutrition" were listed by the State health official as follows: The vitamin fad, the bread fad, the reducing fad, the sour milk fad, the vegetarian fad, the bran and roughage fad and the no meat fad.

Charles G. Dunwoody, prominent in the campaign for conservation of California forests, left last week for Washington, D. C., where he will urge Congress to meet the forestry needs of the State. California forestry leaders are asking that Congress appropriate funds for immediate work on the State forest experiment station, for maintenance of Lassen Volcanic National Park, and for war on the white pine beetle.

C. E. McLaughlin of Sacramento, former appellate judge and a leader in administration of California penitentiary affairs for many years was reappointed by Governor C. C. Young last week for a six-year term on the State board of prison directors. This was reliably reported in capitol political circles where it was said that the governor's policy will be to maintain control of the two State prisons in the hands of men who are fully experienced in the government of penal institutions.

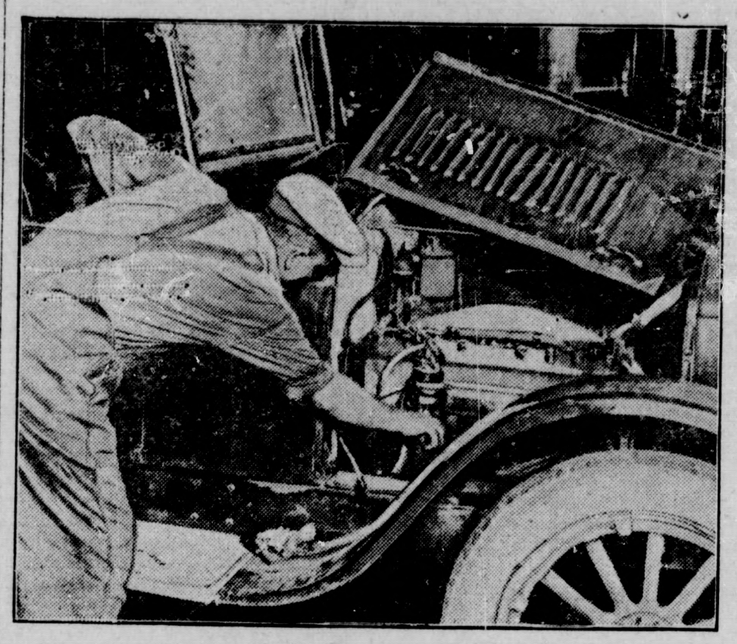
Reporting that only twenty-seven banks have been found in a financial condition warranting suspension during the last eighteen and a half years, Will C. Wood, State Superintendent of Banks, declared last week that California occupies a "position of preeminence in the field of sound banking." The value of the total resources of the twenty-seven suspended banks was given as $11,270,521.14, and the total capital investment was announced as $2,359,869.30.

Just a little over two weeks remains for California motorists to comply with the State law and secure new license plates for 1928. Renewal registration closes at midnight January 31, warns George S. Grant, manager of the California State Automobile Association license issuance service, in a statement issued last week. The law requires that those who have not secured their plates during the time allowed must pay double the usual fee, making the passenger car owner pay $6 instead of $3.

California's method of legal execution by hanging is far from costly, officials at San Quentin declared last week. It is one of the things that has become less expensive with the passage of years. A fee of $25, paid to the hangman, is the chief item. In years past he received $50, which he shared with guards on the death watch. The State pays $2.50 for the hemp noose, a new one being used for each execution after being stretched for months. Interment in the prison cemetery entails an expense of $2.50 for a coffin made in the furniture factory, which is not necessary if the body is claimed by relatives.

One hundred school teachers and school executives will come to California about the middle of March for a month's tour. This was announced at Mexico City by Dr. C. N. Thomas of San Jose, Calif. Dr. Thomas is director general of the International Council for Educational Progress. Dr Thomas went to Mexico to invite the Mexican department of education to send a party of Mexican teachers to California as guests of groups of California educators. The purpose of the tour is to cultivate friendship between Mexico and the United States

DEAF AUTO MECHANIC TUNES UP MOTORS



Born totally deaf, Eugene F. Clarke, an Austin (Texas) mechanic, has become one of the wonders of the town for his expert work in the delicate tuning of motors, locating of squeaks and rattles and adjusting motor horns. Through years of training he has taught his fingers to "hear" what's wrong with automobiles.

INATTENTION IS ACCIDENT CAUSE

Distraction of Driver Leads to Most Crashes, Says Official.

Inattention and generally poor judgment are cited as outstanding causes of motor vehicle accidents by E. Austin Baughman, Maryland motor vehicle commissioner.

"Aside from the more deliberate offenses of omission or commission involving recklessness and criminality, inattention, lack of judgment, timidity and inability to judge distance are contributing causes to the vast majority of accidents," says Mr. Baughman.

Basic Reason.

"The basic reason for each accident always is to be found in the failure of some one to react properly to a given set of circumstances. In other words, the mind is misled, and because of some mental error unexpected conditions arise which further mislead until an extreme is reached and an accident occurs.

"In statistics of motor vehicle accidents inattention is most predominant as a cause. According to reliable statistics, it accounts for nearly half of the accidents and, as a heading for accident causes, literally 'covers a multitude of sins.' It is rarely criminal and almost everyone is guilty of it to some degree. The more common consequences of inattention are found when something other than the act being performed claims the operator's mental activity. Inattention and distraction of attention are, so far as motor vehicle accident terms go, about the same thing.

Keep Eyes on Road.

"While driving, attention to any extraneous object is particularly dangerous. It is dangerous to look for any length of time at any object other than traffic conditions and the highway. Trying to read signs or any similar mental activity should be taboo while driving. If the sign or other object of interest is of sufficient importance to require the driver's attion the car should be turned to the side and stopped.

"The distressing part of this type of driving is found in the fact that consequences of a careless act do not always fall upon the person guilty of the inattention."

Inflation of Balloon Tires Quite Important

One of the most important items in the care of tires is the matter of proper inflation.

Balloon tires especially must carry the right amount of air in them or they will break down quickly. Their walls are thinner and the loss of a few pounds of the slight inflation they do get will cause the walls to buckle and break under the weight of the car.

If the tires are underinflated, also constant flexing of the walls under the heavy strain causes undue heat to be generated. That separates the plies of the fabric and opens it to quicker breakage.

The obvious preventive is to keep the tires properly inflated, checking up on them every week.

Sub-Square Garages Are Now Proposed in London

With the number of English motorists increasing at the rate of 2,000 a week, the parking question has become serious. In this connection the suggestion of garages under some of the London squares has been revived.

It has been decided to place before the royal commission on London squares a proposal for the building of garages under certain squares. According to this idea the squares externally are to retain all their present features except insofar as reconstruction would be necessary to provide ramps or inclines for cars entering and leaving the underground garage.

Small Portable Crane Is Garage Convenience

The crane shown in the accompanying drawing has a wide range of travel and is capable of transferring heavy units from the bench to the machines and to the several cars being repaired. It uses the same track as employed to support the hanging doors at the front of the garage. The provision of such a track around the four walls is the main support for the crane. A double hanger with swivel rollers allows the crane to travel along the continuous runway. The corners are traversed on a curved track, similar to the track on which the door is supported when swung from the front to the side. A cross rail extends from these hangers and rests on a vertical support of pipe, provided with a fixed roller at the bottom. The hoist is carried by a trolley on the cross rail, which permits placing the hoist directly above the load. While every advantage of a crane is provided, the single leg, reaching to the floor, does not encroach on the available floor space, as is usually the case with four-legged portable cranes.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Women Better Drivers Than Men, Says Captain

Women are better drivers than men! The women of San Francisco have the word of Capt. Henry Gleeson, chief of the traffic squad, as authority for this statement.

Women civic and club leaders of San Francisco who gathered in the offices of the California Development association to discuss plans for assisting in pedestrian control when it is finally put into effect under the regulations of the new traffic ordinance, also heard from Captain Gleeson why the male of the species does not come up to the driving standard of the women.

"The so-called superminded man is inclined to be absent-minded while driving," said Captain Gleeson. "His thoughts are on so many things far away from the matter at hand.

"I made the statement years ago that women were better drivers than men, and the records compiled in my office since have not caused me to change my mind."

RADIO

Overloading With High Voltage Causes Trouble

In these days of high voltages and A. C. current supply units, the disabling of loud speakers through overloading the sensitive, high resistance cells of the magnet, is becoming lamentably prevalent.

The best loud speaker is constructed to stand a load of 12 milliamperes or slightly more without any ill effects, but it has been found that where over 135 volts are used on the plates of the output tubes, the load to which they are subjected is often as high as 20 or more milliamperes.

It is difficult to add to the rated capacity of the delicate filaments of the speaker unit without sacrificing much in general effectiveness on normal loads. For this reason we have to look outside the speaker for a remedy for this heavy overload.

Fortunately a number of responsible manufacturers have realized the need for an accessory which would remedy this evil, and are producing a new device known as an "output" transformer, which, when connected across the output of the receiver, cuts off the direct current from the delicate speaker windings, allowing the audio frequencies to pass unobstructed.

The use of this device as a preventive rather than as a cure by the many listeners using over 135 volts on the plates of their amplifiers, will prevent the disabling of numberless loud speakers through demagnetization, short-circuiting and burning out of magnet coils. In addition, they will prevent the less disastrous "choking" so prevalent in slightly overloaded units, and lessen the drain on the "B" supply through the high resistance of the magnet windings.

Grid Leak May Make Very Great Difference

It is surprising what a difference the grid leak makes. In fact, there is a good cause for changing the grid leak when switching from purely local to distant reception.

According to experiments conducted by the engineering staff of the International Resistance company, it is a fact that the higher the grid leak the more sensitive the detector action. However, the tone quality, especially on strong signals, becomes mushy with increased resistance. Also, the higher the resistance the broader the tuning of the set on powerful signals particularly, and, vice versa, the sharper the tuning on loud signals when using a lower value of grid leak.

Interesting experiments in extreme selectivity, even with the old time set notorious for its broad tuning, may be conducted by using low values of grid leaks, say even as low as 100,000 ohms, when working with powerful local signals. On distant signals the grid leak value may run as high as 5 megohms. Interesting results in extreme sensitivity have been obtained with even as high as 8 megohms.

Connect to Receiver When Testing Battery

In testing any battery with a voltmeter, it should be connected to a receiver on which it is to be used and tested with the receiver turned on to give an accurate test of the actual voltage being delivered to the set. Occasionally batteries will test correctly when not connected, because the high-grade voltmeters have a very low drain. When the battery is actually connected to the set with the set turned on, it may prove defective or of insufficient power. This also applies to eliminators. They should be tested when connected to the set with the set turned on and such a reading with an accurate voltmeter will show what power is being delivered to the set.

Should Be Careful When Cleaning "B" Eliminator

Radio listeners should be extremely careful when cleaning or examining the "B" eliminator. Included in the eliminator are banks of filter condensers. When the eliminator is turned off these condensers are left with a high charge of direct current which will give a very severe shock to anyone coming in contact with them. It is best before touching the eliminator (after it is turned off), to take a screwdriver and short these condensers, thereby ridding them of their high charge. After this is done the eliminator may be cleaned or repaired with perfect safety.

Should Be Fully Charged

Here's a tip for radio fans. If for any reason a storage "A" battery of the lead plate type is to be stowed away for some time it should be fully charged and the electrolyte removed. The electrolyte may later be poured in the battery charged and put into operation.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Annie Kwinski of 526 1st Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes that she became so weak and run-down that she was not able to do her housework. She saw the name Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper and said to her husband, "I will try that medicine and see if it will help me." She says she took six bottles and is feeling much better.

Mrs. Mattie Adams, who lives in Downing Street, Brewton, Ala., writes as follows: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and since taking it I feel like a different woman."

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grand-children, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women past fifty, say they owe their vigor and health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and are recommending it to their friends and neighbors.

Radio Transmission

Now that radio has entered the business of transmitting pictures and messages by the square inch instead of by dots and dashes, it is interesting to note that within its first year of operation the speed of transmission has been doubled. Whereas last year 40 minutes were required for a single photograph of standard size, today it can be done commercially in 20 minutes. Under laboratory conditions the same accomplishment has taken but two minutes.

WORSE THAN WAR

Whatever else may happen during 1928, it is a practical certainty that more than 25,000 Americans will be killed in traffic accidents, and another 750,000 injured.

It is strange that the awful death toll of automobiles does not serve as a warning to automobile drivers and pedestrians alike, but it appears that it does not. While a slight lessening of the accident rate in proportion to the number of cars in use has been noted, the total number of casualties has steadily increased.

Many persons who worry over germs or minor dangers of other sorts will take chances on the highways which are bound to sooner or later end in disaster.

As recent statistics show, three times as many casualties result from automobile accidents in a single year as were suffered by the United States forces during the entire World war. The war cost more lives, but the automobile is responsible for more injured.

Among the yearly automobile deaths are those of about 7,000 children of school age, the greatest number being between the ages of 6 and 12 years. The greatest number of accidents occur between 5 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon. Drivers and pedestrians are about equally at fault in their responsibility for accidents, according to the best estimates available.

While the automobile is an indispensible convenience of modern life, it has already caused the death of almost as many persons as were killed in battle in all the American armies since the founding of the Republic.

A new process has been devised to make paper money wear longer. Now if they could find a way to make it buy a little more.

LOOKING FORWARD

A new year has dawned, leaving 1927 an episode in American history. It was a great year, and great things were done. And looking forward to the end of 1928 we cannot do otherwise than believe that there is a twelve-month more coming of prosperity and development and national growth.

With the period of experiments over, always necessary in a young country, each year brings to the United States greater stability, prestige and world recognition. Every year witnesses great new projects executed. Our government is safe and practical. Radicalism of an earlier period is giving place to sensible conservatism that understands the needs of both capital and labor in their close relationship.

We still have our problems and conflicts of opinion, but it is obvious that national understanding and intelligence is deciding important issues. We have every reason for looking forward eagerly to the coming months of 1928.

POLITICAL GUESSES

Political writers, politicians and others may be expected to flood the news columns with their predictions from now until the presidential election is over in November. And about 99 per cent of all their guesses will be worthless, as usual.

There is one strange things, though, about political predictions. No matter how wild they may be, there will be some to believe them, and after time proves them to be merely foolish guesses, those making the predictions will have lost nothing in prestige.

Ordinarily when one "talks through his hat" and subsequent events show him up, he is more or less discredited as a prophet. Not so in politics. For example, Charles D. Hilles, who declared on the eve of the presidential election in 1912 that Taft would win over Wilson and Roosevelt, is now getting considerable space for his forecasts of coming events, in spite of the fact that in 1912 Taft carried only two states. Many who confidently predicted the election of Bryan each time he ran are still doing business at the old stand.

Well, people have to read a certain amount of trash anyway, so possibly foolish political dope is as harmless as anything they could waste their time on.

WHO SAID IT FIRST?

"Verify your quotations" is the advice of someone, but the advice is somewhat difficult to follow. In the case of many famous sayings it is hard to find out who really said them first. There are many instances of striking phrases which have been attributed to prominent persons who really borrowed them from others.

For example, Lincoln's reference to a "government of the people, by the people, and for the people." Almost identical words were used by John Wycliffe in the fourteenth century, and by Roberspierre, Thomas Cooper, Joseph Story, Daniel Webster and Theodore Parker long before Lincoln uttered them at Gettysburg.

Even the Golden Rule, which appears in two forms in the New Testament, were expressed by Confucius five centuries before Christ, and by other ancient teachers.

Perhaps the most catchy phrase ever uttered by the late William Jennings Bryan contained his "crown of thorns and cross of gold" metaphor, which is credited with securing his nomination for the presidency in 1896. It has been and still is generally believed that the phrase was original with Bryan, but the Congressional Record shows that it was spoken by Congressman Samuel W. McCall in a speech several months before.

But no one whose words have been appropriated by another could have shown a better spirit towards his imitator that McCall showed toward Bryan in this instance. When questioned about it later, McCall said:

"Yes, Bryan borrowed it from one of my Congressional speeches. And probably I stole it from somebody else."

TO STAND FOR AGES

Although America's greatest cathedral, that of St. John the Divine in New York, will not be the largest in the world, it will rank third in ground surface. But it will be the most durable of any cathedral ever built by the hand of man.

In structural strength, due to better materials and finer workmanship, St. John's will greatly surpass any of the European cathedrals of the Middle Ages. It is estimated that the granite used will not near down as much as an inch in 5,000 years.

An eminent engineer, J. Barnard Walker, recently declared that he has never seen a finer job of masonry, or one in which the cutting and setting of the stone showed greater exactitude and care.

Barring some great catclysm of nature, St. John's cathedral should stand for thousands of years as a monument to American genius of the twentieth century.

With the big news of the day coming from automobile show rooms, it may be that the world is getting better after all.

A lot of unheeded advice is given, the most futile being that offered young folks concerning marriage.

MOVIE CENSORSHIP

During a recent debate on the question, "Should there be Federal supervision of motion pictures?" the affirmative was upheld by Canon W. S. Chase of Brooklyn, who incidentally indulged in some loose talk on the subject.

He declared among other things that the motion picture is a school of crime, and attributed the kidnapping and killing of Marian Parker by the young fiend, Hickman, to the fact that the murderer was a frequenter of the movies.

That such a statement is not only ridiculous but vicious is evident to any sane person. In all cases in which motion pictures deal with crime the criminal is brought to justice before the story ends. We have never seen a picture in which the criminal escaped. Therefore, there is nothing in moving picture plots which might encourage a person to believe that he could commit a crime and get away with it.

Federal censorship and supervision of motion pictures would merely add another lot of office holders, with authority to harass producers and an already overburdened public. If such a thing were possible, any censorship which might be invoked had better be applied to such idle talk as Rev. Chase indulged in concerning the cause of crime.

FEWER LYNCHINGS

According to the annual report of the Tuskegee Institute, there were only sixteen persons lynched in the United States during 1927. While this is the lowest number recorded in any year since records have been kept, except in 1924, which showed the same number, it is sixteen too many.

Still, when compared with the terrible record of thirty-five years ago, this report should give encouragement to all who are striving to remove the blot of lynch law from American civilization. To show briefly how lynching has decreased, a few figures will be of interest.

Lynching reached its most frightful height in 1892, when 255 persons were murdered by mobs. Of this number 100 were white and 155 colored. There were 115 lynched in 1900, 74 in 1910, 61 in 1920, 64 in 1921, 17 in 1925, 30 in 1926 and 16 in 1927.

During 1927 officers of the law protected forty-two persons from mobs and in numerous other cases prisoners were removed to other jails as a precautionary measure. The record of law officers in this respect has shown much improvement in recent years. It is chiefly to the courage and determination of sheriffs and other officers that the lessening of the lynching evil is due.

ANOTHER INDUSTRY FOR THIS SECTION

J. T. Casey & Son, Colma realtors, were recently instrumental in bringing another industry to this section. It is announced that a company which is engaged in the manufacturing of ice has purchased a site in Jefferson Park, where a plant will be erected for the manufacture of ice, the deal being handled by J. T. Casey & Son. The building is now well under way, and it is expected the plant will be in operation in the very near future.

GAME VIOLATORS ARE NABBED BY WARDEN

Shooting of one quail out of season proved costly for V. Lazza, Millbrae rancher, who was fined $50 when he was brought before Justice of the Peace J. J. McGrath at San Mateo last Tuesday. Lazza, who was arrested by Game Warden Jack Burke, also admitted that he had no hunting license.

Jack Witesel, a Stanford student, arrested by Warden Burke for fishing without a lincense, pleaded guilty before Justice of the Peace Edward McAuliffe at Redwood City and was fined $5. He declared that he was ignorant of the fact that a new license was required each year, and immediately after leaving the court purchased a 1928 license.

SIDELIGHTS

Herr Burchmann of Berlin was recently given a three-year sentence for robbery and laughed heartily, thinking it a good joke. It seems that in addition to being philosophical he also has a sense of humor. The joke lay in the fact that he had already been given sentences aggregating 208 years, for committing some 500 robberies, so he didn't mind the three years more.

Charles Wolf, a 15-year-old New York boy, has given up the idea of suicide, or has at least postponed it until warmer weather comes. He jumped into East river, but quickly climbed out again. When questioned he said: "I was going to commit suicide, but the water was too cold."

Major, a pet monkey owned by Thomas Charles, of Jersey City, has been taught to do a number of interesting stunts, including that of shining his master's shoes. A new kind of "monkey-shine."

Since making his joking remark about doing some whittling after he leaves the White House, President Coolidge has been showered with knives sent as gifts by manufacturers, and has asked that no more be presented. It is said that numerous small boys of Washington have offered to relieve Mr. Coolidge of the surplus hardware.

After keeping it on his shelves for many months, a second-hand dealer at Bristol, England, sold an old blue and white ginger jar for $3. He got a jar that was also a jolt when he learned later that it had been resold in London for $30,000. Experts had discovered it to be on of the finest Hawthorn China jars in existence.

Alexander Kazoz, of Sioux City, has a house to rent, but after several weeks of advertising has been unable to find a tenant, possibly because he is too particular. The sign on the house reads: "This house for rent. Tenants must keep the Ten Commandments."

An odd account of a church service recently appeared in the Cadar Rapids (Iowa) Gazette, which told that "Last night Evangelist Scoville spoke on 'The Bible and Hell' and Mr. Deloss Smith sang 'We Shall Meet You There.'"

LABORER TO MAGNATE

From a boy laborer in a steel mill to the head of the largest industrial concern in the world is a big jump, but James A. Farrell, of the United States Steel Corporation, has made it.

When his father was lost at sea with his ship, young Farrell was 15 years old. He had to leave school to earn a living, so his hopes for a college education were shattered. At 16 he began as a laborer in a steel mill in his home city of New Haven, working twelve hours a day as was the rule at that time. Bue he somehow found opportunities for the study of books, as well as to gain a thorough knowledge of his work.

Before he was 21 he was foreman of 300 men in a Pittsburgh wire factory, then in turn became a salesman, sales manager and general manager. When his company became a part of the United States Steel Corporation he was placed in charge of the foreign end of its business until he became president in 1911. His recent advancement to chairman of the board gives him the most important place in American industry.

Mr. Farrell believes that a young man should begin at the bottom to learn a business, as he did. When his son wanted to enter shipping as a career, Mr. Farrell had him work alongside of longshoremen and stevedores on the docks for a year.

Judging by his own outstanding success, it seems that Mr. Farrell has the correct idea about getting started right.

JURY FIXES BLAME FOR WOMAN'S DEATH

Blame for the fatal accident which resulted in the death of Mrs. Antone Silva, of Beresford, January 1, was fixed on J. Harris, of 1499 Sutter street, San Francisco, by a coroner's jury at an inquest conducted last Friday in San Mateo. The jury said in its verdict that the testimony of all witnesses showed that Harris' automobile was traveling at a rate of speed in excess of the San Mateo speed limit. Mrs. Siiva, a passenger in the automobile driven by her husband, died of a broken neck, the jury determined. Silva was injured, as was Frank McNally, veteran member of the San Mateo police department, who was a passenger in the Silva automobile.

SEQUOIA BAND WILL CONTEST FOR HONORS

Sequoia high school of Redwood City will enter the national school band contest for the first time in its history, it has been announced. The winner of California competition will travel east for the national contest. John Philip Sousa, famous composer and band leader, heads the advisory committee that includes Captain Taylor Bronson, leader of the United States Marine band at Washington, Frederick Stock, director of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and Herbert L. Clark, director of the Municipal band of Long Beach, California.

FINGERPRINTS PLAY ROLE IN BOOTLEGGING CASES

Fingerprints played an important part in the trial of nine San Mateo county bootleggers before Justice of the Peace Ed McAuliffe at Redwood City, it has been revealed. Each violator of the Wright act knew that he stood little chance of beating the case if he were bound over to the Superior Court on a charge of sale of liquor. For fingerprints on each bottle of liquor purchased as evidence were carefully developed and photographed by Undersheriff Ed Farrell as evidence. Therefore, the bootleggers paid a fine of $500 each in lieu of a jail sentence. This method of prosecution is unique in the prosecution of Wright act violators.

GIRLS' CLUB OF COLMA

On Thursday evening, January 12, the Girls' Club of Colma held their first business meeting of the new year at the home of Mrs. Margaret Pauline Brown, on Dunk street. The meeting was called to order by President Miss Fabian Ver Linden, and the minutes were read by Miss Elsie Wilke, secretary pro tem. Considerable business was transacted.

The girls plan a Spanish supper in February, which will be followed by their business meeting, which will take place on Thursday evening, February 2. A theatre party will also be planned for all the directors, officers and members.

Extensive plans are being made by the committee in charge for the Girls' Club of Colma's annual whist party, which takes place in March. The proceeds will be used in purchasing of subscriptions to new magazines for the soldier boys at the Base hospital, Palo Alto. This is a yearly duty which the Girls' Club has undertaken and have worked very hard in order to bring cheer and happiness to the many lonely hearts who have done their bit for our country. Much praise has been bestowed upon the girls for their kind acts toward this worthy cause, and all hopes are that their party will be a social and financial success. Keep your eye on the Daly City Record, as further details of this party will be published in the near future.

EMBASSY THEATRE WILL SHOW "THE FIRST AUTO"

On Friday, January 20, the screen at the Embassy Theatre will travel back twenty-eight or so years in showing "The First Auto," a Warner Brothers picture. In the film such incidents as the invention of the then termed "devil machine" and the first walk toward town by one of the belles of the day.

Barney Oldfield, beloved old race driver, is the star of the production, which also includes Patsy Ruth Miller and Douglas Gerrard in its cast. The film is to be shown the week before the San Francisco Auto Show, and will be given a flying start by a mammoth parade which will show all the local "first autos" on march between the Ferry building and the City Hall.

On the Vitaphone, Willie and Eugene Howard, popular vaudeville and revue stars, are the headliners. They will be remembered for their appearance in several musical shows in San Francisco during the past decade. Others who are seen and heard on this marvelous new entertainment device are Joseph Diskay, Hungarian tenor; Venita Gold, star impersonator; and Henry Halstead and his orchestra.

POOR ECONOMY

Volunteer firemen in a small western town threaten to disband and leave the town unprotected, because the voters refused their request for a pumper and adequate equipment. A good fire department is one of the most important units in community life. The firemen sacrifice their time, their clothes and their physical safety to save their neighbors from fire loss. No collective investment pays as great returns as adequate fire fighting equipment. The least that any taxpayer can do is to come through when the fire boys offer to put their lives against a few dollars tax.

There are more than 380,000 men and women in the United States engaged in rendering telephone service. This is more than the population of many well known cities, such as Denver, Colorado, Atlanta, Georgia, or Toledo, Ohio.

The double feature at the State Theatre next Sunday, January 22, is Thomas Meighan in "We're All Gamblers," and Virginia Valli in "Marriage."

The largest telephone directory published west of Chicago is that for Los Angeles.

STORY FROM THE START

Handsome, fastidious and wealthy—young St. Croix Creighton awaits his sweetheart at their trysting place. She is late, this ordinary little Pennsylvania Dutch girl, Meely Schwenckton. Despite her seeming innocence and ignorance, she succeeds in keeping him at a distance, to his chagrin. Meely, in the Schwenckton home, where she is boarding, is altogether unlike the girl who meets St. Croix clandestinely. She is the teacher in the neighborhood school, of which Marvin Creighton, St. Croix' brother, is superintendent. Meely learns that Marvin was to have married his cousin, a titled English lady, but, believing she was attracted by the Creighton wealth, had refused the alliance. It is the rumor that St. Croix is to take Marvin's place and marry the English girl. St. Croix' jealousy is aroused by Meely's report of an aged suitor for her hand. The girl cleverly decoys him into admitting he has no intention of marrying her. Marvin visits school in his official capacity as superintendent and discovers how shockingly little Meely knows about school teaching.

"No," she decided, "for he is really fastidious and Nettie's a hopelessly common little thing. And yet, if he can stand me and the dope I hand out to him—"

She did not know, however, that St. Croix, to his own wonder, never felt that she was "common" or vulgar; not even when she manifested the intelligence of a sheep or twisted the English language until his nerves were rasped; not even when she sat sprawling ungracefully with her feet far apart, nor when, after tasting an apple, she drew the back of her hand across her mouth.

She was a good actress, but there was that something inherent that nothing could disguise—

• • • • • • • •

It was just when, relieved of Aunt Rosy's espionage, Meely was beginning to feel, in spite of the dangerous proximity of Marvin Creighton, more at her ease, less insecure in her equivocal position, that, on that very evening when she sat in the warm, bright kitchen, peacefully writing letters, she was to find the complexity and precariousness of her situation greatly increased by the outcome of an episode which was, at that same hour, in its incipiency on a Sunbury street corner, eight miles distant.

Mr. Sam Schwenckton, having finished the business which had taken him to town, was about to enter his car parked on the edge of the town, and start for home, when a man standing on the corner, apparently waiting for a trolley car, approached him.

"Pardon me—how often do these cars run?" the man inquired in a tone of extreme irritation. "I've been waiting here twenty minutes!"

"It don't run no cars on this line after seven o'clock, Mister. This here trolley line ain't doin' much business anyhow, so it stops till seven a'ready. You must be a stranger here—ain't?—or you'd o' knowed that."

"No—but I seldom use the trolley. Today, however, I had to leave my automobile at the repair shop. Are you, by any chance, driving out this road?"

"Yes, eight mile out."

"Will you, then, for a consideration, let me go with you?"

Now as the night was raw and wet, it would, Mr. Schwenckton felt, be only a Christian act to offer this stranger a seat in his car. Also, he liked company, some one to talk to on an eight-mile drive. But the newspapers were so full of holdup stories—and he was carrying a good deal of money — wouldn't he be taking chances?

The man looked so decent, however (what could be seen of him in the dimness) and Mr. Schwenckton had, as always when he traveled at night, brought his revolver with him—

He felt in his pocket and surreptitiously moved his pistol from his right-hand pocket to his left.

"I wouldn't want no sich a 'consideration,' Mister. Just so's you ain't one of these here thugs you can read about in the papers—"

The man laughed. "You're twice my size. If I can trust you not to hold me up, I guess you're safe!"

"Yes, I guess that's so too. All right. Come on, then."

Mr. Schwenckton felt rather cheated when he found that the stranger, though sociable and agreeable enough, was not going to repay his hospitality by satisfying his curiosity as to who he was. All the leading questions with which the farmer plied him received evasive answers. This seemed to Mr. Schwenckton so suspicious that he frequently felt in his left-hand pocket to be ready in case of need.

However, he tried to put his apprehensions aside and to beguile the ride with friendly talk.

"So your car had to go to the shop, heh?"

"Yes, worse luck!"

"When I first got my car I drove her and drove her till I got the cold in my chest and it near give pneumonia yet! Yes, anyhow!"

The stranger made a sound expressive of his sympathy. For a while they drove in silence.

"Funny thing happened in the bank today," Mr. Schwenckton resumed conversationally. "When I went in to get a check cashed—" He stopped short in consternation—how tactless to mention having cashed a check!

"What was it?" asked his companion.

"Not much—a dollar or so. I spent it," said Mr. Schwenckton pointedly.

"I mean what was the funny thing that happened?"

"Oh, that! Well, a lady standin' alongside of me in the bank she handed in a check and the banker he said to her, 'What denomination?' and she says sort of snappy, 'Well,' she says, 'I'm a Presbyterian, but I don't see what business it is of yourn,' she says."

The laugh in which they joined over this yarn seemed to establish between them more confidence. Mr. Schwenckton, always warm-hearted, was sorry he had been feeling so suspicious of a fellow man and tried to atone by being as friendly as possible.

"Was you ever to New York, Mister?"

"Yes."

"That's a place I never seen. But my brother he was always set on seein' this here New York oncet, that you can read so much about in the papers. So at last his missus she says to him, she says, 'Pop,' she says, you're gettin' on in life and if you don't go soon to this here New York, you'll be too old to go.' So, then, he said he'd go oncet. So she helped him get ready and start off. 'Now, mind you, write,' she says to him, 'and tell me how you like it.' So after a couple of days she got such a pitcher post card from him and he'd wrote on it, 'Mom, Yi, yi, yi, yi! Pop.'"

Again their joint laughter seemed to bring them sympathetically close.

Since leaving the lighted town, the road had been very dark, for the night was cloudy and starless.

"Where do you want out, stranger?" Mr. Schwenckton presently inquired. As he spoke, he took his hand from the steering wheel to have a glance at his watch—and as he did so, the man beside him gave an uneasy start.

With a shock of some horror, Mr. Schwenckton's fingers found an empty pocket where his watch should have been! Instantly he stopped his car and jerked out his revolver. "Now, then, you hand out that there watch and then you run for your life!" he shouted.

The man obeyed with alacrity, thrusting the watch into the farmer's outstretched hand, leaping from the car and disappearing in the blackness of the road.

Mr. Schwenckton, greatly shaken by so narrowly escaping being manhandled by a thug, his soul heavy with sadness at the desperate wickedness of man, went on his solitary way, musing on his own folly in having let his kindness of heart get the better of his prudence.

"It ain't safe to take up strangers these days—that it ain't! And me, I was always too trusting that way! Well, this here's certainly a lesson to me! Be kind to your fellah-creatures, yes—up to the danger point. That's all the further a fellah darst be a Christian these days!"

His despair over the perfidy of our human nature deepened as he reflected upon the "gentility" of the thief: his "nice" voice, his "educated" speech, his "polite manners"—what with his "Beg pardon," "Thank you very much—"

"A slick one, he was! I can't never trust no one's appearances again!" thought Mr. Schwenckton with a sorrowful shake of his head. "That's the worst harm a crook does—he spreads abroad a mistrust of man made in the image of Gawd!"

Fifteen minutes later Mr. Schwenckton, usually the most placid of men, confronted his family in the kitchen, looking so white and agitated that Meely and Nettie sprang up greatly startled, and even Susie looked at him inquiringly.

"I was held up and robbed!" he announced. "Not two mile up the road yet!"

"Ach! Was you hurt?" cried Nettie in a fright, running to him.

"No, I ain't hurt. And I ain't lost nothin' neither! I held the crook up and got back what was stole off of me! That's what I done!"

"Ach, Pop!" Nettie gasped in mingled terror and admiration.

"Good thing I took my rewoiwer with! It ain't safe, these rough times, to travel at night without a gun along!"

He told them, then, as he removed his hat, coat and gloves, just what happened—giving his story a dramatic climax. "'Now, then,' I says to him, 'you hand out that there watch and then you run for your life!' I says. And he did! With that there rewolwer of mine in his face, he done what I tol' him and pretty quick about it too! Yes, and I guess he's runnin' yet!"

"Yes, well, but," Susie stolidly spoke to him over her shoulder, "you didn't take your watch along. You let it at home. You forgot it. There it lays." She thrust her thumb backward toward a small shelf which held a convenient comb and brush for family use.

Her husband stared at her incredulously as she calmly rocked her sleeping infant—then, desperately hoping to prove her words false, he fearfully drew from his pocket the watch he demanded from the stranger, and slowly, reluctantly, he let his eyes fall upon it.

It was not his!

Such a watch it was as he could never hope, nor even wish, to own. Gold, jeweled, initialed.

In a stride he stood before the shelf and beheld his own accusing watch.

"I was sayin' to Nettie," said Susie, "that you'd be awful put out at goin' without your watch along."

"And I never oncet missed it!" the wretched man murmured.

"But—why, my lands!" faltered Nettie, "this here's got an awful look!—like as if you'd held that there man up and stole his watch, Pop!"

"And I don't know who it is to give it back!" Mr. Schwenckton's voice was agonized. "If I never find him, it'll make me feel awful conscientious to keep his watch! Yi, yi, yi!" he shook his head and began agitatedly to pace the length of the kitchen.

"Oh, you'd have no trouble finding him, Mr. Schwenckton," said Meely encouragingly. "He'll of course report to the police and they'll easily trace you up."

"Yes, and arrest me for a thief yet!" exclaimed Mr. Schwenckton.

"I'll tell you!" cried Meely. "You report to the police, Mr. Schwenckton, and tell them of your mistake—and that you want them to find the man. That will save you."

Mr. Schwenckton stopped in his agitated walking to and fro, and looked at Meely admiringly. "You're got the head on you, Meely! I didn't think that far myself. Education's a grand help to a body in this here life! That's what I'll do this selfsame minute!"

He went to the telephone, but found the line "busy."

"Delay may be fatal!" said Meeley anxiously. "You must report it before he does. He has had a good deal of time already—all the time you've been home unloading your car and putting it in the garage—and the time you've been in the house—"

"Yes, well, but I don't think he'll be reportin' it very soon—I started him on a good run and I guess he's still runnin'!"

It was at this instant that they were all startled by a rap on the kitchen door, and before anyone could answer it, the door opened and a wet, bedraggled and very tired-looking young man almost staggered into the room, closing the door behind him and leaning against it heavily.

Rules That Govern Kinship of Cousins

In answering a correspondent's query, "What relation are the children of first cousins to each other? What relation to me is my first cousin's child?" the Pathfinder Magazine says:

"Reckoning cousin relationships is simple if you start out right. A cousin is one collaterally related by descent from a common ancestor, but not a brother or sister. Children of brothers and sisters are first cousins to one another: sometimes they are called cousins-german, own cousins, or full cousins. The children of first cousins are 'second cousins' to one another; children of second cousins are third cousins to one another, and so on. The child of one's first cousin is a first cousin once removed; the grandchild of one's first cousin is a first cousin twice removed, and so on. Confusion sometimes arises from the custom of some people who speak of the children and grandchildren of their first cousins as second and third cousins, respectively, but the practice is only local. The correct and almost universal rule for reckoning cousins is as we have given it."

Taste and Invention

For generations past architecture has been so overladen with extraneous matter that many authorities actually preach that in this branch of art it is in bad taste to invent. Correct architecture, they say, consists merely in reassembling borrowed forms. All of which is palpably absurd. If the Greeks had thought so there never would have been any Greek art. On the contrary, architecture, now as ever, consists in solving problems of utility as economically and appropriately as may be.—New York Sun.

Dame Fashion Smiles

By Grace Jewett Austin

Grace J. Austin.

There probably never was a boy made who, if given the choice between two pieces of pie and one piece of pie, would not be sure to take the two pieces. Even if not immediately hungry to that extent he would make a cache of the extra pie somewhere for future need.

Curiously enough, it is almost reaching that pass with gowns for women and girls. If a two-piece and a one-piece costume are both offered, quite often the two-piece gown will get the choice. So the one-piece gown is canny, and just as likely as not you will be told to notice that it is a "simulated two-piece gown."

Once upon a time there was a theory that the two-piece gown was a sports gown. Dame Fashion remembers very well her first two-piece frock, of tan and red, when she was sixteen years old, at boarding school. It was supposed to be worn in the gymnasium where we learned to fence with wands. That is another story. Some day Dame Fashion will get started to declare that there isn't an athletic thrill to be had like the rhythmic wonder of swift fencing to music.

But at any rate, in the far-off time that red and tan two-piece dress was to be worn in the gymnasium and on the tennis courts and nowhere else. It was considered too loose and "floppy" to be a real costume in that day of many whalebones.

Now exquisite two-piece dresses are semiformal gowns; are dinner gowns—have even reached the estate of formals.

Dame Fashion would like to put the most beautiful girl in America—you probably all have a candidate for that place—into a two-piece metallic cloth gown she saw this week. It was most unusual cloth, with little hints and shades of blue and green and violet in the metallic material. Accent was given to this gown by long loop bows at shoulder and side of sapphire blue transparent velvet. There was also a pendant effect clasp at the neck with the modern costume-gems that look like sapphires.

Dame Fashion thought what a gift-gown that would make for some lovely lady who was born in September. For September is the sapphire birth month. And it would not be at all necessary to wait for September to present it. For it is the delightful thing about birthstones and colors, that their magic power lasts the whole year through.

Used Flour Sack Makes Convenient Laundry Bag

Laundry bags need washing almost as frequently as the soiled clothes which they are to hold. A new-style bag which has many good points over the old drawstring variety is made of a material which can be washed or even boiled. They are so inexpensive to make that there is no reason why every member of the family should not have his own bag. In fact they cost but a few cents apiece since they are made out of used flour bags which almost any baker will sell you.

First rip the bag and then cover the inked spots with lard or soak them overnight in kerosene. By morning, the stamping can be easily washed out in lukewarm water. Then fold the goods in half, and make a slash in front through which to put in the soiled articles. The bag is emptied by simply unfastening the flap at the bottom. The top of the bag has a leading and a casing in which is run a small woolen slat or rod which can be slipped out for washing. The sides of the bag and the slash are bound with some bright-colored braid tape. Use a different color for each bag. The word "Laundry" may be cross-stitched on the flap or the initials of the owner.

Another satisfactory kind of personal laundry bag to be made out of a used flour sack has the usual drawstring top, but with a 12-inch strip across the bottom of any side. Stitched down the middle, this makes two extra pockets, one for stockings and one for handkerchiefs. This saves a lot of sorting when wash day comes around.

The idea of using leaven in bread dates back to prehistoric times.

Oak Floors in Colors Add Beauty to Home

People today appreciate the floors of their homes as more than something to walk on, a mere separation between the first story and the second, just as they know that a room is more than an inclosure of four walls, and that a house is one thing, a home another. The difference is made up of all the thought and care put into arrangement, fittings, decorations—all the livable and intimate appointments that make "home."

Your floors are really the foundation of room decoration, enhancing the beauty of furniture and hangings. Harmonious color treatment of the room as a whole is now made possible with the new modern finishes, which may be selected to suit individual taste. Imagine the dignity of a library paneled in oak, with oak flooring in "weathered" finish, the harmony of a dining room in tones of gray and blue, with darker gray oak flooring, or the charm of an inclosed sun porch with floor finished in forest green, light and cheery—a bit of outdoors brought into the home. The opportunity of choice is infinite, and each room may reflect your own individuality, your floors becoming your very own, different from others about you.

Collars on Frocks, According to Paris Mode

The new dresses do away with collars as much as possible. Yet Paris finds a way to retain the flattering touch of white or color which usually marks even the simplest dress, by tucking crepe de chine or pique inside the neckline of the dress and making a gilet of it.

A tailored dress of the new eponge, by Jean Patou, has its square neckline outlined by white pique. The white shows about three-quarters of an inch at the front and about a half-inch at the sides and back. Cuffs on this dress are replaced by little inch-wide bands of pique worn outside the sleeve, a few inches above the wrist.

Louiseboulanger uses a surprising touch of yellow in a similar gilet on a dress of printed silk, but in this case the gilet forms a sort of yoke.

Galosh Vogue Finally O. K.'d by French Women

Parisian women who have consistently fought off spats, galoshes and boots while the rest of the world was wearing them have finally succumbed to Mistinguett's gaiters. The music-hall artist whose legs are often hailed as the most beautiful on the French stage has taken to wearing knee-length satin gaiters with zipper fastenings.

The boulevards are following suit and even the exclusive bootiers who design to order are making tentative displays of knee-length boots of soft leather which fasten with zippers. They are meant for sports and motor wear, however, and not for city streets.

Embroidered Frock Is Evening Mode in Paris

The evening dress which owes its charm to a bit of well-worked embroidery is an important one in the Parisian winter collections.

Nearly every house of importance shows one or more of these frocks, which, because of their costliness and the impossibility of imitating them successfully, are among the most distinguished of the season.

There are several ways of using the embroidery, but all of them are simple, such as a spray of flowers embroidered on the shoulder, at the hip, at the point of a V decollette. Bands of Chinese embroidery also figure.

The BABY

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill. Fretfulness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria; its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. It's delicious! Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's a sign of colic; constipation; diarrhea; or need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Just one warning: it is genuine Fletcher's Castoria that physicians recommend. Other preparations may be just as free from all doubtful drugs, but no child of this writer's is going to test them! Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold.

Mrs. Lydia Barnes of woman's club fame was scoring the modern mother for dressing like her daughter. "What is chic and proper for the young," she contended, "may be and usually is, vulgar and ridiculous for the giddy parent. The worst of it is, that the young folks know this and lose respect for those who should be their guides and mentors.

"The other day I heard one of those modern mothers say to her daughter: 'Gertrude, are you keeping something from me?'

"'Yes, my millionaire boy friend!' was the pert answer."

Houses Grow With Each Fight

AFTER every heavyweight championship fight since 1921, with exception of the affair at Shelby, Mont., we have been informed that we have seen the last and greatest of such spectacles. "This is the peak. Tex Rickard never can hope to outdo this," men said after the gate receipts incidental to the crushing of Georges Carpentier at Jersey City had been announced as more than $1,600,000.

"People may have been enticed out this time, but never again," we heard after the huge, hairy Firpo had been dragged to his corner at the conclusion of the second "more-than-a-million" spectacle.

Tex Rickard.

After Philadelphia it was the same old story. "This," they told us, "is the last. People came out here and were stung and then half drowned. No fight will be worth more money than this one."

Before and after the Chicago fight between Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey, it was maintained that the ultimate in fisctic spectacles had been attained. "There must be a limit, and this is it," said those who knew (or thought they knew) the capacity of the American public for pecuniary punishment where pugilism was concerned.

Now the chances are that there will be a heavy weight championship fight during the first fortnight of September, of this year, somewhere in the vicinity of New York city, and that it will be witnessed by more spectators than were in Soldiers' field last year, and enriching Tex Rickard, Gene Tunney and another boxer by sums exceeding those gleaned from the public at Chicago.

Plans for the trip have been completed by a group of representative students from Big Ten schools.

The members of the party will sail from New York July 7 on the S. S Ryndam. The trip includes visits to London and the Shakespeare county in England, to The Hague, Scheningen, Amsterdam and Marken in Holland and to Ostend, Brussels and Waterloo in Belgium. The students will occupy seats in the grand stand at the Olympic games July 28.

From the games at Amsterdam the party will go to Cologne and by steamer, on the Rhine to Weisbaden. There they will divide in three sections for different parts of Europe, meeting again in Paris, a week before sailing for the United States.

Zuppke Calls Two-Team Football Plan "Flabby"

The two-team football argument still rages in the Western conference and the more Coach Zuppke of Illinois talks about it, the more critical he becomes. He told the Aurora alumni of Illinois that it was a "flabby idea" because men don't play football for exercise but for "the drama and heroism of it."

Adding a second football team to the university athletic program is a mere drop in the bucket where there are 7,000 male students, Zuppke continued, and there will always be one "best" team anyway.

"America wants to see only the best," Zuppke said. "When people begin to worship mediocre or only second best, then the nation is doomed."

Use Many Languages

Thirteen languages were used to tell the story of the Notre Dame-Southern California football spectacle in many parts of the world. In addition to English (or American, as it is known in Chicago), accounts of the contest were told in Spanish, Polish, German, Hungarian, French, Slovenian, Greek, Italian, Rumanian, Yiddish, Croatian, Scandinavian and Norwegian newspapers.

Marquette Cage Star

The photo shows Floyd Razner of Stevens Point, Wis., a forward, who as captain of the Marquette university basket ball team of Milwaukee, will lead Coach Frank J. Murray's blue and gold quintet into action against such aggregations as Northwestern, Iowa, Minnesota, Oregon Aggies, Michigan Aggies, Creighton and Notre Dame.

FITZSIMMONS HAD HARDEST PUNCH

Lanky Bob Given Credit for Punching Ability by Fistic Authorities.

Bob Fitzsimmons, according to quite a number of fistic authorities, carried the hardest punch of any heavyweight champion.

Jack Dempsey's punching ability was always regarded as inferior to that of Fitzsimmons.

If you care to base your arguments on the respective records of Dempsey and Fitzsimmons, then Dempsey must be considered the better slugger, writes H. G. Salinger, in the Detroit News.

Dempsey has engaged in eight fights where the heavyweight title was involved. He has scored a total of 22 knockdowns.

Dempsey knocked down Willard seven times in the first round of their fight in Toledo. He knocked down Billy Miske twice in the third round of their fight at Benton Harbor. He knocked down Bill Brennan once in the twelfth round, at New York city. He dropped Georges Carpentier twice in the fourth round at Boyle's Thirty Acres. He scored seven knockdowns over Luis Firpo in the first round and two in the second at New York city. He floored Tunney once, in the seventh round, at Chicago.

In only two of his fights did Dempsey fail to score a knockdown. He could not drop Tommy Gibbons in their 15-round bout at Shelby, Mont., and he failed to topple Tunney in their first meeting at Philadelphia last year.

Fitzsimmons fought only three fights as heavyweight champion and he scored but one knockdown. James J. Corbett was the only man Fitzsimmons floored in heavyweight championship competition.

The statistics, therefore, lean far toward Dempsey.

Helen Wills Plans Tour of Europe Next Season

Helen Wills, American and British tennis champion, will tour Europe this year as a member of a two-woman team officially representing the United States Lawn Tennis association.

This became known when Miss Wills telegraphed acceptance of the invitation extended by the national tennis body.

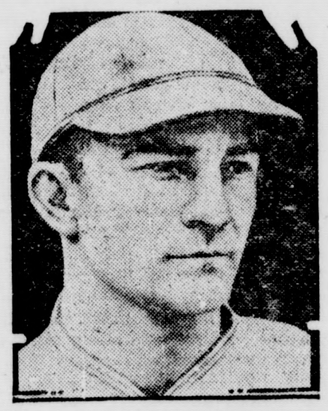
Matches will be played with the leading woman racqueters of France, England, Germany and Belgium.

The other member of the team has not been selected, but it is understood that Penelope Anderson of Richmond, Va., and Mrs. Charlotte Hosmer Chapin of Springfield, Mass., are being considered.

Miss Wills plans to leave either in April or early in May.

The Berkeley miss has definitely decided not to play in the French championships, June 21, as the date is too close to the Wimbledon tourney.

Cub Slugger



Riggs Stephenson, shown in the photo, had a great year with the Chicago Cubs. Besides playing a clean game in the outfield he had a batting average of .340, fourth among National league batsmen.

Coach Wilce Continues Fight on Varsity Evils

Dr. John Wilce of Ohio State will continue on his big job at Ohio State and in the Western conference, chiefly in the line of divorcing fraternity politics from athletics. Already he has accomplished, or had accomplished, one constructive piece of legislation to this end—the naming of a captain for every game instead of electing a season leader. It seems altogether likely that other Western conference elevens will adopt this seemingly necessary measure. As an influence and as a coach who can make as much out of good material as any other coach, Doctor Wilce is needed in his present field of endeavor.

Youth and Age Make Good Hockey Combine

The Chicago Blackhawks of the National Hockey league have the youngest and the oldest goal tenders in major league hockey. "Chuck" Gardiner, twenty-three, is the regular goalie, and Hugh Lehman, forty-one, regular last year, is acting as team coach this season. Gardiner has been doing so well Lehman has not been placed on the ice.

HAPPINESS

"Of course," said Mrs. Cardinal bird to her mate, "I am not nearly so handsome as you are."

"You're different," said Mr. Cardinal Bird. "But you're very beautiful in your own way.

"I've heard many and many a person say:

"'Ah, aren't they a fine looking pair!' And I'm not a pair all by myself, you know," added Mr. Cardinal with a gallant bow.

"That makes me feel happy," said Mrs. Cardinal. "It's nice to hear pleasant things, isn't it? So much better than to hear horrid mean things."

"Very much better," agreed Mr. Cardinal.

"Your brilliant red suit is so beautiful," Mrs. Cardinal said admiringly to her mate.

"Ah, I think your gown of rich brown with the touches of red is very distinguished and stylish," said Mr. Cardinal.

"I've always been an admirer of deep brown with touches of red."

"I'm so glad," said Mrs. Cardinal.

"How different any of us are if we are captured," said Mr. Cardinal.

"I've heard it said that all our cousins are cross and sad if they are captured."

"It's a good thing," said Mrs. Cardinal.

"I'm glad to hear that our cousins have acted that way if they have been captured."

"We weren't meant to be captured and caged, anyway, and it's not in the least bit fair or nice to do such a thing to us."

"It's not fair," agreed Mr. Cardinal. "It's very cruel. And I don't blame our cousins for behaving in such a way. When we're free we're always happy and gay.

"That is the nature of the cardinal bird."

"Ah, yes, and in cages I've heard it said," continued Mrs. Cardinal, "our cousins couldn't flap their wings and stretch them out. They couldn't bathe in the sun and they couldn't fly and feel the wonderful air about them.

"And as for singing—well, naturally, they didn't feel like singing when they couldn't enjoy the beautiful freedom which birds do enjoy so much."

"You did make such a nice nest this spring," said Mr. Cardinal. "I really think you built one of the nicest homes ever a bird did build."

"Oh, I thank you, I thank you," said Mrs. Cardinal. "I just built it in the usual way with leaves and twigs and bits of bark and vines.

"I lined it of course with dry grass, for a nest which is not lined seems very unfinished to me. Of course I built it loosely as we always like our nests that way."

"It was perfect," said Mr. Cardinal. "And you are always so devoted to me," said Mrs. Cardinal, "that I can't help but do my best.

"I've heard it said that there are no happier families than the Cardinal Bird families."

Then Mr. Cardinal Bird sang a glorious high-pitched song of joy, wonderful notes which sang of freedom, a happy home, a loving mate, some beautiful little birdlings, with no cruel cage to shut him in.

Mrs. Cardinal Bird sang, too.

Her voice was softer but it was very lovely, and very, very musical.

For the cardinal birds are very happy when they are free and their little family life is quite as perfect as any to be found in the bird world or in any kind of a world.

Qualities in Odors

It was all right to say "I've got your number" until the chemists got around to making digital specifications of odors. A system developed in the laboratories of Arthur D. Little of Cambridge, Mass., recognizes four decisive qualities in its numerical definition of odors.

These odor types include the fragrant type, with the sweetness of flowers; the acid type, with the sourness of vinegar and camphor; the burnt type, with a tarry smell, and the caprylic type, which has a goaty or almost putrid pungency.—Nation's Business Magazine.

Always Scrapping

Luella and Fred, cousins, were always arguing and could never agree.

A few days ago Luella, looking scornfully at Fred, said, "I won't ask you to my party, Misser Fred. You's always scrapping; I never det a single wo'd ahead of you's."

Have Kidneys Examined By Your Doctor

Take Salts to Wash Kidneys If Back Pains You or Bladder Bothers

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

The Gay Deceiver

Mrs. Printz—So your husband has been deceiving you, eh?

Mrs. Sharpe—Yes, the wretch. I've been giving him 20 cents for his bus fare every day, and I just found out he's been walking to the office and spending the money.

Personal Comment by Mrs. G. E. Tower

San Francisco, Calif.—"For the past seven or eight years I have taken Dr. Pierce's remedies off and on, that is, the 'Favorite Prescription,' and the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I began with these when I was about grown. The 'Favorite Prescription' is the best medicine any woman ever took. The 'Golden Medical Discovery' is fine for the stomach—excellent for a person who is rundown in health."—Mrs. G. E. Tower, 1105 Laguna St.

London to Be Floodproof

London's great "anti-flood" scheme is nearing completion after nearly seven years' work. Parts of it have been finished, and are credited with having saved the city from a possible deluge during the big storms of last summer. The scheme includes storm relief sewers, with pumping stations fitted with powerful machinery at danger points. When it is completed, experts say, London will be practically floodproof.

From the H. H. Smith Lumber Yard

VOLUME I FRIDAY, JANUARY 20, 1928 NUMBER 25

Published in the interests of the People of Daly City and vicinity by H. H. Smith and Employees.

Now that our New Year's resolutions are all broken, we can again enjoy life.

We are assured by the father of a large family that he finds nothing wrong with the rising generation, beyond a difficulty each morning in getting them to rise.

"ABERDEEN," the Coal that satisfies.

Mrs. Sharp (in restaurant): "Just look at that Scotchman eating over there."

Mr. Sharp: "I see the man, but what makes you think he is Scotch?"

Mrs. Sharp: "He licked his spectacles after eating his grape fruit."

"Will you marry me in spite of my trouble?"

"What is it?"

"Falling hair."

"You darling boy. To how much?"

When in need of Coal, think of H. H.

Identity Unknown

Mary: "Did you go riding with Billy last night?"

Jane: "Yes."

Mary: "Well, what do you think of him?"

Jane: "Well, he is either a gentleman or a fool."

His Better Half

An old offender was accused of assaulting his wife.

"Liquor?" asked the judge.

"No," answered the prisoner, gloomily, "she licked me."

If we can not serve you as well as anyone else, we do not expect your orders.

Arthur: "Do you object to petting?"

Martha: "That's one thing I have never done yet."

Arthur: "Petted?"

Martha: "No, objected."

When you think of lumber, think of H. H.

Low: "What is it a sign of when your nose itches?"

Brow: "Going to have company."

Low: "And what if your head itches?"

Brow: "They have arrived."
